Song Inspiration and story:

John Selleck is Ryan's main collaboration partner for many of his song lyrics as they continue to co-write and produce songs together . John is an avid reader and observer and there are times that reading a simple post on the net can result in song inspiration . This song came out as a result of one of these real life posts about a letter that got lost from a soldier . The letter contained details about the soldier pledging his love and asking his wife to be for her hand in marriage when he gets back home . Unfortunately , the soldier didn't make it back and she gets the letter years later and John's muse then took off from there .

Ryan picks it up from where John left off to bring out the emotions behind the lyrics in the song, Using a simple grand piano and an acoustic guitar through the song , the chord pattern and melody aims to bring out the simple uniquely written lyrics to touch the soul of a listener. From a soft ballad feel through the first part of the song , the bridge picks it up nicely to capture the feelings the family today experiences upon receipt of the letter and sentimental attachment of the memory associated with the soldier.
