Celebrating 30 Years of Love: Ryan Dsouza releases his New Single "You've Got That Zing Thing" White Rock B.C. Canada

Ryan Dsouza, an emerging singer-songwriter based in Vancouver BC is set to release a new single, "You've Got That Zing Thing," a song written to celebrate 30 incredible years of togetherness with the love of his life.

"You've Got That Zing Thing" is the soundtrack to our love story. It's about how love isn't just something you fall into—it's something you hold onto through ups and downs" says Ryan Dsouza. "It's about the late nights talking, the road trips with no destination and the quiet moments that mean everything. From stolen glances to late-night laughter and everyday moments, the "zing" is in the little things that make up a relationship. I wrote this song to capture the excitement, the fun, and the deep connection that has kept our love strong for three decades. It's a reflection of our journey—from that first glance to the life we've built together."

With playful yet sentimental lyrics, "You've Got That Zing Thing" brings together smooth guitar riffs, a catchy melody, and an old-school rock-and-blues groove that will have listeners tapping their feet and reminiscing about their own love stories.

"You've Got That Zing Thing" will be available on [Streaming Platforms - Spotify, Apple Music, YouTube, etc.] on 14th March 2025. This release is not just a personal dedication but a universal anthem for anyone who has found (and held onto) their "zing thing."

The song's official music video, is set for release on 11th April 2025 featuring both cinematic storytelling and real-life memories, the video serves as a reminder that true love only grows stronger with time.
